Scooting Around With SANDY FRAZIN

HI YA! I'M STILL SOOO . . . Seems that's all I say, so I won't say that I'm that, so there. Oh, well, meanwhile, back at the ranch. Since I'm so speechless, I might as well look around.

I see Natalie Pels and Marv Berman looking happy. Maybe the cause of that is due to the fact that they are now going steady. Congratulations! It will be pretty tough on Marv, as Natalie has left for Florida. Natalie went there with Renee Fox.

Last Monday night, Barbara Whitson gave a farewell party for Natalie. Guests attending were Harriet Spasser, Bobbie Lipman, Barbara Jones, Ethyl Freeman, Marv, Bernie Herman, Howard Ladin, Bill Braun, Howard Rader, and Gary Welsher.

SEEMS AS IF there's quite a few visitors here again. From 'way up in Pittsburgh, Barbara Jones came to Naptown with her cousin Harriet Spasser. . . . Visiting her cousins Rhea and Jerry Leffel last week was Esther Glick, who hails from Cinco. . . . Then from Columbus, Ohio, came Susi Plotnick. Oooooops, I mean Sandy or is it Susi? Oh, well, one of 'em is her and the other her real cute black cocker spaniel. Sandy is visiting yours truly. . . . Visiting from Detroit is Ethyl Freeman. Marv Berman's cousin. . . . Representing the East, meaning New York, is Paul Silvers, who is visiting David Lutz.

OFF FOR CAMP WYANDOTTE near Columbus, Ohio, this week end is Gayle Landau. Gayle will be a junior counselor at this camp.

BACK IN TOWN again after a short visit in Evansville is Howard Ladin. He visited his sister and brother-in-law.

from a visit in Chicago is Howard Rader.

HERE AND THERE it's heard that, after the Temple Teen Outing, Dave Shapiro had all the kids over to his house.

OOOOOPS, ALMOST FORGOT, my twin cousins are visiting my sister and me. The twins are Sofia and Sylvia Hurwich from Dwight, Ill.

MORE TRAVELERS are Joe Kroot and Sunny Calderon. Joe has already left for California, and Sunny is leaving for Florida and Cuba Sunday. Sharp, huh!

YEP, IT'S ANOTHER ONE. I mean another new gal has moved to town. Just too many gals moving here, that's all. I suppose I'll have to make the intros:

Carol Moskowitz, these are "them." "Them," meet Carol. This youngun of 15 comes from Bridgeport, Conn. Whew, but that's a long way! Anyway, she's here, all 5'1½" of her.

CAROL, ON COMPARING Naptown to Bridgeport, said immediately that Naptown's bigger. She'll get along fine here after saying that. She likes this big city because of the pools. Ya see, Bridgeport only has beaches.

You'll probably hear her starting and finishing with the expression "ya know." Can't say that I do! "Eavesdroppers," mainly her younger brother, are her pet peeves. Oh, well, that's

BIG EAGLE HAS OPENINGS FOR SECOND FOUR WEEKS STARTING NEXT WEEK END

Big Eagle Camp has openings for its second four-week period beginning July 24, it was announced this week.

JCC staff members Mort Goodman and Sy Bekoff serve as director and assistant director of the overnight camp near Zionsville, 17 miles from Indianapolis.

More than 30 Big Eagle campers earned their American Red Cross beginner's swim cards during the first two weeks of the current camping season.

A Junior Life Saver training program has been started there for the first time.

Pirate and hobo parties and a "flaming arrow" July 4 celebration have highlighted Big Eagle's first period thus far. A kiln for ceramic work has been installed.

The swimming program is being handled by Irv Reisberg, a Big Eagle veteran who recently enrolled at Indiana university medical school. Phil Kliman of Boston Teachers college leads the crafts program, while the three unit leaders are Don Sellmer, Lynn Cassen, and Leonard Goddy.

For registration information, call WA 1nut 3-2401.

KI-WA-CA ALL OUTDOORS; SWIMMING AT BIG EAGLE

The Jewish Community Center's Camp Ki-Wa-Ca is becoming an all-outdoor operation with the change of its swimming site from the Kirshbaum building to the outdoor pool at Big Eagle camp, near Zionsville.

The change was made after a comparison of the time and distance factors showed that more time in each swimming period could be spent in the water at Big Eagle than at the North Meridian st. building.

During the remainder of the second camp period, and for the third and fourth periods this summer in Ki-Wa-Ca, the Kirshbaum pool will be used only when rainy weather prevents outdoor swimming. Mrs. Constructor, will be out at Big Eagle swimming pool during the day camp's periods there to continue the instruction of campers.

Ki-Wa-Ca's third period will begin July 25, and the fourth term starts Aug. 8. Each lasts for two weeks. Parents wishing to register their children for the day camp should call Max Casper, camp director, at GLendale-1705.

More New
2-Letter, 5-Figure
Telephone Numbers
for Indianapolis

Beginning Sunday morning, August 7, some 70,000 additional telephones in Indianapolis will have new 2-letter, 5-figure numbers. This is the second of three steps in the program which will change all of the city's telephone numbers to the new type—another step forward in furnishing you with the most modern telephone service.

The new numbers consist of a prefix that has two letters and one figure, followed by four figures. In most cases, these last four figures of present numbers remain the same. For example, TEMPLE 4100 becomes LIBERTY 7-4100.

The prefix changes to be made on August 7 are as follows:

*BLACKSTONE	becomes	FLEETWOOD 6
*IRVINGTON	becomes	FLEETWOOD 7
*HYACINTH	becomes	FLEETWOOD 9
CHERRY	becomes	LIBERTY 6
TEMPLE	becomes	LIBERTY 7
COUNTY	becomes	TRINITY 8
BOWMAN	becomes	TWINBROOK 4
HICKORY	becomes	WALNUT 5
TALBOT	becomes	WALNUT 6

*NOTE: BLackstone, IRvington and HYacinth numbers in the ACTON-WANAMAKER AREA become UNIVERSITY 2.

Here are two other important changes to be made at the same time:

Dial 110 for Long Distance.

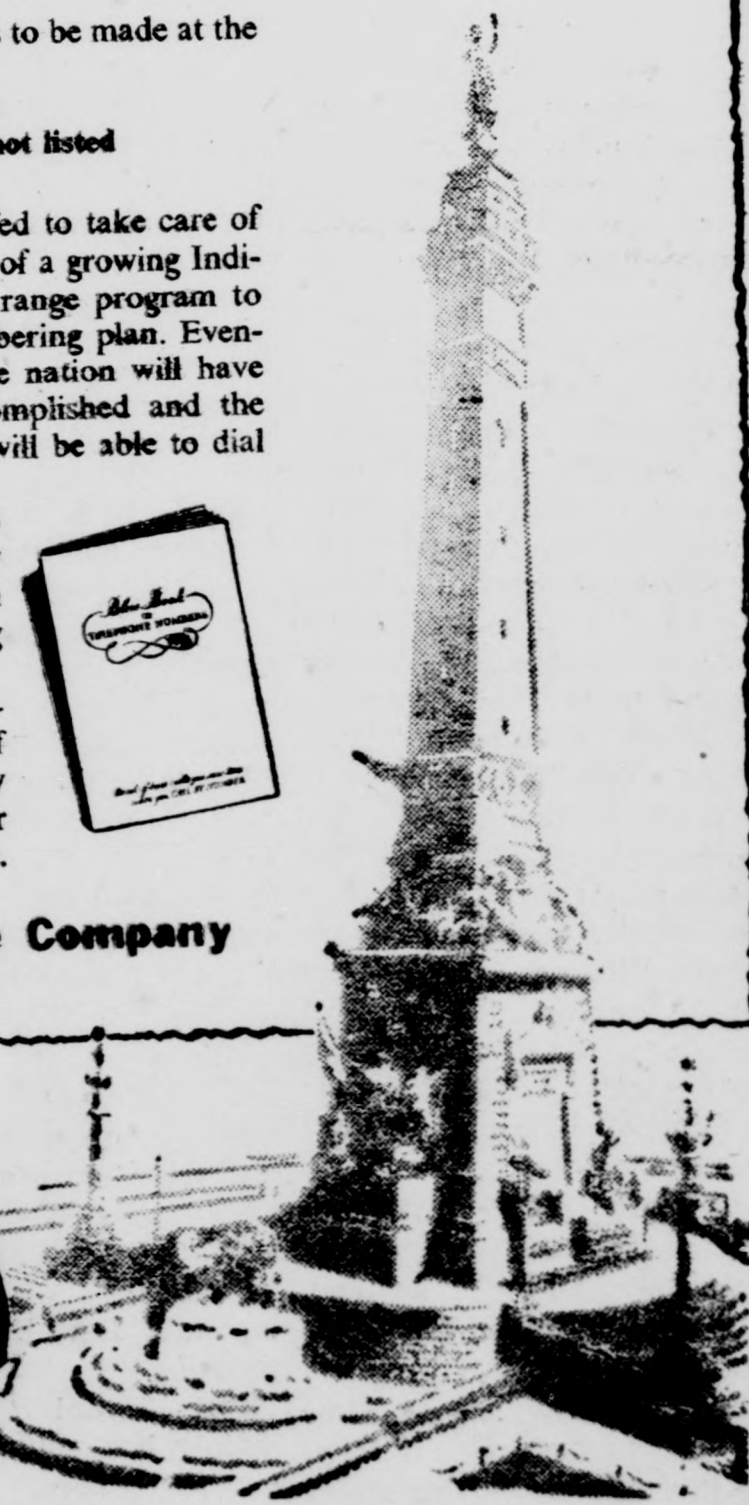

Dial 113 to obtain numbers not listed in the directory.

The new numbering system is required to take care of the expanding communication needs of a growing Indianapolis. Also, it is part of a long range program to provide a uniform nation-wide numbering plan. Eventually, all telephones throughout the nation will have "2-5" numbers. When that is accomplished and the necessary equipment installed, you will be able to dial telephones in other cities directly.

Before the new "2-5" numbers go into effect a directory with a gray cover will be delivered to you. You will save yourself time by consulting it on every call.

If you would like to have a Personal Telephone Directory, free of charge, in which to write frequently called numbers—just stop in at our Business Office, 240 N. Meridian St.

2 KIDS PAWNS IN CUSTODY FIGHTS

Brooklyn Couple's Son Sought By Unwed Mother

NEW YORK (JP)—A suit filed in a Chicago court has revealed another case in which a non-Jewish mother is attempting to reclaim her child from a Jewish couple who had taken the child for adoption.

While the case involving Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Ellis, of Brooklyn, Mass., is drawing nationwide attention, an unwed mother is seeking recovery of her son, George, from Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Gluckman, of Brooklyn. Tina Zouros, Chicago seamstress and a native of Greece, charged in her suit that when she signed the adoption papers she didn't know that the Gluckmans were Jewish.

MISS ZOUIROS wants the child restored to her or given to someone who will bring up the boy in the Greek Orthodox faith. She also charged fraud on the part of the Chicago clerk who had presented the adoption papers for her signature, and said she didn't know what she had signed since she doesn't read or write English.

Gluckman, a government employee, and Mrs. Gluckman, have been caring for 5-month-old George since he was two weeks old.

The Gluckmans, through their attorney, Herbert Harte, stated their intention of using every legal means to fight the suit. They denied all charges and said the mother knew of their religion through the doctor and lawyer who arranged for the adoption.

HARTE told The POST he has signed affidavits from relatives of the woman stating that she knew the people adopting her son were Jewish and that she had no objection to this. The lawyer said that everything was explained in great detail to Miss Zouros in her native tongue.

Harte intends to go to Chicago to fight the case and to investigate certain aspects of it, namely how Miss Zouros was able to discover the name of the Gluckmans, since this information is supposed to be confidential with the court. The lawyer told The POST that if his clients should lose the case in the Chicago courts, he will continue the battle in New York courts.

Illinois has no law prohibiting interfaith adoptions, so the only way Miss Zouros can regain her child is by proving that fraud had been committed in the original proceedings.

Israel Appeals For Doctors' Aid

JERUSALEM (WNS) — An appeal to all private physicians in the country to volunteer their services in public hospitals to meet the health crisis resulting from the slow-down of physicians and nurses employed in the public hospitals was issued this week by the ministry of health.

While the appeal was made the strikers, including teachers and professors at the Hebrew university, cautioned that if their demands for higher wages are not met soon, they would call for a full-scale strike.

Miss America?

Vera (Ginger) Stein, 20, Temple university senior, who has been chosen Miss Philadelphia, is in the running for a chance to represent Pennsylvania at the Miss America pageant in Atlantic City this September. Ginger, a blue-eyed, brown-haired model who earlier this year won the 1955 National College Queen title, was crowned by Barbare Sue Nager, another Philadelphia Jewish girl, who was last year's Miss Pennsylvania.

Study Urged On Jews' Fate

NEW YORK (JP)—A request that the fate of Jews behind the Iron Curtain be discussed at the Big Four summit talks at Geneva was presented in a detailed memorandum to the White House and the State Department by representatives of the Jewish Labor Committee.

The memorandum urged that free communication be allowed between families and friends inside and outside Soviet frontiers, and free emigration by Soviet families to visit relatives be permitted. It also asked for Jewish culture to be re-established by opening schools and seminars and starting newspapers and publications.

Warsaw Theatre Acquires New Home

LONDON (WNS) — The Yiddish State Theatre in Warsaw has acquired a permanent home, according to a Warsaw broadcast which said a building had been given to the theatrical group by the Polish ministry for art and culture. The broadcast, picked up here, said the ministry's action was in "recognition of the Yiddish State Theatre's achievements."

ISRAEL WARNS EGYPT IT'LL DEFEND ELATH

JERUSALEM (JP) — Israel has flexed its muscles in an attempt to deter Egypt's blockade of the Red Sea port of Elath.

Prime Minister Moshe Sharett told an enthusiastic election campaign rally that if Egypt attempts to blockade the port by force, Israel will not hesitate to retaliate in kind.

He said Israel would attempt "all peaceful measures against the Egyptians' blockade" and that sterner measures would be the consequence "should our enemies fail to respond to our efforts through international channels and peaceful negotiations to lift their blockade."

Almost echoing Sharett's words at a similar rally at Beersheba was Defense Minister David Ben-Gurion. The former premier told the Mapai party supporters that the port of Elath would soon be complete, assuring passage to the Indian Ocean, and that this would be done "if necessary with the help of the Israeli navy, air force and army."

At the same meeting he hinted he might be asked to form a government as premier if Mapai was successful in the elections. Rumors of Ben-Gurion's return to the helm have been growing recently (JP, July 1, '55).

JWB to Provide U. S. Moslem Gls With Kosher Chow

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (JP)—In an unprecedented move, the National Jewish Welfare Board has announced it is prepared to extend the service of providing kosher food to U.S. military personnel of Moslem faith.

Devout Moslem servicemen on active duty face dietary problems similar to those of Orthodox Jews. The JWB gesture will undoubtedly be a great blessing to sons of Islam serving the nation.

Announcement of the plan was made in a monthly letter by the chief of chaplains of the U.S. Army.

UN Chief Hopeful On Gaza Talks

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (WNS) — Optimism regarding the current Gaza talks between Israel and Egypt was reiterated here this week by U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld as he told newsmen he saw no reason to change the hopeful views he expressed at an earlier meeting with the press.

The third session of the Israel-Egyptian talks was slated to take place this week.

(Several Israeli soldiers were alleged to have been killed in a clash along the Gaza border, according to a Cairo report which claimed the casualties were inflicted by Egyptian forces when an Israeli unit crossed the armistice line.)

Ellises Face Charge Of Kidnapping Hildy

By HARRY CUSHING
Jewish Post Correspondent

BOSTON (JP)—While authorities this week were considering a plan to hold Mr. and Mrs. Melvin B. Ellis on a charge of kidnapping if it can be proved that they had taken their foster daughter, Hildy, out of the state, they could find neither the Ellises, Hildy, nor the writ of habeas corpus commanding county sheriffs to seize the four-year-old child.

It was reported that consultations have begun between local authorities and the Federal Bureau of Investigation on the possibility of citing the Ellises for kidnapping. The FBI may already be involved in the case.

HILDY ELLIS
Which Mama's Baby?

THE DISAPPEARANCE of the habeas corpus further complicated the case involving the Jewish couple who refused to give up the 4-year-old Catholic foster daughter whom they have reared since she was 10 days old.

Without the actual papers in hand, sheriffs and their deputies cannot act. An order requiring the Ellises to appear in court on July 18 and show cause why they should not be held in contempt of court for failing to surrender their foster daughter to the Catholic faith.

Mrs. Doherty, who bore the child out of wedlock and then gave her up for adoption has been seeking recovery of Hildy since she discovered the little girl's foster parents were Jewish. Despite their religion, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis have promised to rear the child in the Catholic faith.

GRUENWALD BRINGS CHARGE OF PERJURY VS. KASTNER

JERUSALEM — Dr. Israel Kastner, who sued Dr. Malkiel Gruenwald for libel and lost, when the court found that Kastner had been a Nazi collaborator (JP, July 1, '55), is now facing a charge of perjury, filed by Dr. Gruenwald.

The new charge states that on Feb. 22, during the case against Gruenwald in the Jerusalem district court, Dr. Kastner committed perjury. The testimony complained about is: "When I was in Nuremberg for the first or second time, I gave no evidence in connection with Becher (S.S. Col. Kurt Becher, Himmler's trouble-shooter in Hungary) neither before the court nor before institutions and agencies of the international court . . . I gave no formal testimony in Nuremberg in his favor . . . I gave no testimony or sworn oath."

In his ruling, Judge Benjamin Halevy held that Dr. Kastner, former head of the Hungarian Jewish Rescue committee, had collaborated with the Nazis, prepared the way for the massacre of 500,000 Jews, and testified at the Nuremberg trials in defense of Kurt Becher.

Charitable bureau was issued by the Norfolk county Probate court on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis disappeared following a previous order for their arrest issued by Judge James F. Reynolds of the Probate court. They have been missing since the July Fourth week end. Friends and business associates have implied they are in hiding at a vacation resort.

ATTORNEY James Zisman, counsel for the Ellises, has announced his clients will appear in court only if they are properly served with a summons. He declared that the couple are determined to continue their battle to keep the little girl, whose natural mother, Mrs. Marjorie McCoy Doherty, of Bingham, wants to recover to leave with a Catholic placement bureau.

Judge Reynolds had warned the couple they would face arrest if they did not surrender the child to Mrs. Doherty. When they failed to do so, the judge issued a warrant for their arrest. July 6 the Massachusetts Supreme court declared the warrant had been drawn up improperly. Justice Raymond S. Wilkins ordered a preliminary inquiry into the action of the lower court.

Mrs. Doherty, who bore the child out of wedlock and then gave her up for adoption has been seeking recovery of Hildy since she discovered the little girl's foster parents were Jewish. Despite their religion, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis have promised to rear the child in the Catholic faith.

Preliminary investigation of the new charge will begin on July 31 before Magistrate M. Czernovitsky in Tel Aviv.

Judge Halevy's previous ruling set off a political crisis in the Israel cabinet, when the General Zionists abstained from voting on a resolution censuring the government for its handling of the case.

Kastner told The JERUSALEM POST that if his case is brought up before the supreme court "it will be a welcome opportunity for me to put at least a part of this whole chapter in a true light."

Israel's attorney general has held that if there is to be any action on the perjury charge it will have to come after a decision on appeal has been reached by the supreme court.

Jewish Groups Stone Each Other

JERUSALEM — Members of the Naturei Karta, who are boycotting the elections to the third Knesset, and members of Agudat Yisrael, who are supporting candidates in the elections, threw stones at each other recently.

The clash started, according to observers, when Agudat Yisrael members attempted to put up elections posters in the Meah Shearim quarter of Jerusalem, where the Satmar yeshiva of the Naturei Karta is located.

Seven large windows in the yeshiva were broken.

Rabbi Gives Dybbuk Sailing Orders

JERUSALEM (WNS)—The court of the Belser rabbi here was the scene recently of the old and now rarely used ceremony of exorcising a dybbuk from an afflicted person.

The "possessed" was a young Jewish woman, a recent immigrant from Turkey, whose ailment had been diagnosed by her physician as a nervous disturbance that was resisting cure. After consulting with a Turkish rabbi and a number of physicians, the woman's husband took her to the Belser rabbi and implored him to exorcise the dybbuk that was consuming the heart and body and mind of the mother of his four children.

Lighting candles and with prayer shawl over his stooping shoulders, the Belser rabbi asked the woman whether she consented to the process and whether she obeyed the laws of Torah. The rabbi spoke in Yiddish and his words were imparted carefully and exactly to her in Turkish by a translator who attended the ceremony.

When the preliminaries were over, the rabbi in firm whisper directed the dybbuk to depart from the body of the woman. There was silence in the room as the rabbi ended his command. Then the woman trembled visibly. The dybbuk was gone and her husband said he heard it leave.

A dybbuk is a migrant soul which enters the body of a living person and refuses to leave it unless exorcised by a religious rite. Jewish folklore is rich with stories of dybbukim and their ejection from the afflicted. Among the literary works on the theme is S. Anski's drama "The Dybbuk."

Mrs. Robert F. Wagner waters the tree which her husband, Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York (on right), planted in the Jewish National Fund Tree Nursery near Haifa. The Tree Nursery, named for Wagner, was recently established on JNF land by B'nai Zion, American Zionist fraternal order in New York.

REFORM RABBINICAL SCHOOL WEIGHED FOR N. Y. AREA

NEW YORK (JP)—The struggle to re-establish a complete rabbinical school for Reform rabbis in New York was reflected in an announcement that a committee has been organized to determine whether enough men are interested in studying for the Reform rabbinate in New York and receiving private ordination (semichah).

Rabbi Louis I. Newman of Temple Rodeph Sholom in New York made the announcement.

The exploratory steps are being taken pending the outcome of the struggle to reinstitute the Hebrew Union college — Jewish Institute of Religion as a complete rabbinical institution in New York for the ordination of Reform rabbis.

If efforts are successful, the committee will abandon its preliminary efforts. However, if Reform rabbinical students are forced to complete their training at the Hebrew Union college at Cincinnati, as is now the case, Rabbi Newman intends to carry on the exploratory studies.

Through contacts with the heads of Semitics departments, Hillel foundations, rabbis, and laymen, Rabbi Newman is seeking to discover men, not committed to any present rabbinical institution, who are interested in undertaking studies for private ordination.

Under the proposed plan, men would take higher or graduate degree in Semitics or Jewish studies at universities in New York city and study rabbinic studies privately under the guidance of a group of men of established scholarship and reputation who have already expressed a readiness to furnish the instruction.

Rabbi Newman told The POST that he felt many older men who are now synagogue leaders or in other professions might contemplate the rabbinate under such a program as this. As to whether congregations would accept men with private semichah, Rabbi Newman said: "I feel that this depends upon the particular man and his scholarship, training, emotional stability, ministerial competency, and dedication to the rabbinate."

Many Greek Jews Now Proselytes

TEL AVIV (JP)—Over 2,500 Greek Jews have converted to Christianity since World War II, according to an article in the Spanish weekly TIEMPO, published here by Sephardic Jews. Salonika-born J. Benaroya, the author of the report, says that there are about 1,000 half-Jews in Greece, many of them in the ancient historic town of Salonika. Furthermore, he adds, the ORT schools in Greece are about to be closed because of lack of pupils.

There were about 8,000 Jews in Greece, after the Nazi extermination of over 60,000 Jews there.

Russian 4-Point Plan Reported For Near East

TEL AVIV (JP)—The Soviet Union is preparing an "Economic Development Scheme" for the Near East, to be proposed both to the Arab nations and to Israel, according to foreign diplomatic circles here.

The plan reportedly is based on the recent Soviet agreement with India. Russia has agreed to supply India with large quantities of machine tools, and to buy the output of the equipment for the first two years.

Salesman for the plan reportedly will be Soviet Premier Marshal Nikolai Bulganin who, "before the end of the year," will visit Near Eastern capitals to discuss the proposal with the various governments.

Former S.S. Officer Sentenced for Murders

ROME (WNS)—A former Nazi S.S. officer, Gottfried Meier, has been tried in absentia here and given a life sentence for having killed four Jews in Italy in 1943.

An Austrian court which tried the ex-Nazi acquitted him for "lack of proof" and as a result the Austrian government refused to extradite Meier to Italy. The murders occurred at Intra, on Lago Maggiore.

New Chicago Temple Based On Judaism Council Tenets

By BEN GALLOP

Jewish Post Correspondent

NEW YORK (JP)—The second congregation growing out of the Schools for Judaism program of the anti-Zionist American Council for Judaism will be opened formally in a Chicago suburb at the start of the next Jewish year in September.

The new Lakeside Congregation will have a full-time rabbi, and will hold services on Sunday, in line with a proposal to that effect offered recently by Rabbi Elmer Berger, executive director of the Council, to bring American Jewish religious practices into an alleged greater harmony with the American scene (JP, Apr. 29, '55).

The first congregation was established in June, 1954, as the Congregation for Reform Judaism in Westchester. The charter membership consisted largely of parents of children in the Westchester School for Judaism, the pilot school of the Council's steadily expanding children's education program. Rabbi Samuel Halevi Baron, the Council's religious director, is spiritual leader for the Westchester congregation.

BERGER

THE FIRST MEETING of the Lakeside Congregation was held on May 4 and was reported on in the current Council News by Clarence Coleman Jr., president of the Council. Coleman was elected president of the congregation.

Rabbi Richard E. Singer, a graduate of the Hebrew Union College, left a pulpit at Temple Israel in West Palm Beach, Fla., to become spiritual leader of the Lakeside Congregation. He also joined the Council "purely voluntarily, because of his expressed agreement with the Council's principles," Coleman reported.

Coleman reported that about 125 families "have already joined but the total will probably never exceed 350 to 450 families. All who do join will be accepted only after agreeing to the basic Statement of Principles."

The statement stresses the Council's approach to Judaism, geared to the themes of "Prophetic Judaism" and the "universalism" of the Jewish faith. Notably absent from the statement is any evidence of the Council's bitter hostility both to Zionism and to traditional Judaism.

ON THESE MATTERS, the basic statement declared merely that "we unqualifiedly dissociate ourselves from the concept, no matter by whom it is advanced, that Jews are a separate community or nation" and that "we shall observe practices, customs and ceremonies which shall be meaningful for us because they symbolize in effective and meaningful form the principles of our faith, compatible with our lives as Americans."

Coleman reported that Rabbi

Berger had "a prominent part" in the preparation of the set of congregational principles.

Repeated emphasis is placed in Coleman's report on the independence of the new congregation from the Council, presumably as an implied form of criticism of general participation by American Jewish congregations of all branches in activities for the State of Israel, which the Council has criticized repeatedly.

COLEMAN TOLD the first meeting, for example, that the Council has no services or facilities to offer "new congregations" beyond the "spelling out of its own principles as they relate to religious congregations.

The congregation is—and must remain—independent."

He also emphasized that "despite the fact that the congregation's leadership includes individuals prominent on the local and national levels of the Council, no effort will ever be made to use the congregation for the organizational advantage of the Council."

The 270-pupil Highland Park School for Judaism, largest in the Council list, will become the religious school for the new congregation "under supervision and control of Rabbi Singer," Coleman reported. He added that school officials and Rabbi Singer will continue to work closely with the Council.

"THE LAKESIDE Congregation's services will be held on Sunday mornings," Coleman reported. "There will be vesper services early Friday evening. These will commence with the High Holy Days in the fall of 1955."

While Coleman's report was uncertain on the point, it appeared that the new congregation would hold no services on Saturday. Sunday services were not unknown in the earlier period of Reform Judaism in the United States but virtually all Reform congregations have dropped such services.

There are other ultra-Reform congregations in the United States, including those in Cleveland and Pontiac, Mich., but the Westchester and Lakeside congregations are the first to develop from the Council school program.

Both the school and the congregation will use the building of the Edgewood Junior High School in Highland Park, moving there in the fall from present premises in the Braeside public school in the same suburb.

City of Hope Plans 1,000 Auxiliaries

LOS ANGELES—Plans for the expansion of the national auxiliary program from the present 300 chapters to 1,000 in 1959 were laid on the line at the recently concluded City of Hope convention here.

Mrs. Fred Berman, volunteer national chairman, made the comment in her keynote address.

At present, the auxiliaries supply 50 per cent of the medical center's income, she pointed out. The new perspective is coupled with a proposal submitted to the convention for an operating budget of $5 million by July, 1957, and $10 million by 1959.

BAR ILAN COLLEGE BACKERS HIT BACK AT ISRAELI CRITIC

By ALAN KOHN

Jewish Post Correspondent

NEW YORK (JP) — Supporters of Bar Ilan university have lashed back at a recent editorial attack on it by MAARIV, Hebrew language newspaper in Israel (JP, July 8, '55).

Dr. Carol Klein, administrator of Bar Ilan university, told The POST that there is a very definite need for more academic facilities in Israel, as evidenced by the hundreds of Israeli students now studying outside of Israel.

Dr. Klein denied that Bar Ilan was a party university or would lead to the development of such institutions. He said that while the university was originally sponsored by the Mizrahi party (Religious Zionist) it draws support from many people who are not Orthodox Jews, Benjamin Browdy, Judge Louis Levinthal, and Benjamin Mazur, members of the board of trustees, among them.

Taking the editorial to task for saying that Bar Ilan had awarded an honorary degree to Mayor Robert Wagner of New York, who is a Christian, he said that Mayor Wagner was made an honorary fellow, not awarded an honorary degree. He added that this practice was a common way for universities to deal with prominent personalities.

He also defended the granting of recognition to a Christian, by saying that it was very narrow-minded thinking for any Jewish institution not to recognize contributions by people regardless of their religion.

Three Sue Asch For 'Libelous' Views In Story

TEL AVIV (JP)—Chief Rabbi Dr. Isaac Herzog, Haim Liberman of the New York JEWISH FORWARD staff, and Zvi Har-kavi, who translated Liberman's book criticizing Sholom Asch's "missionary ideas" into Hebrew, are suing Asch in Tel Aviv's district court.

Their plea is based on the fact that three months ago Asch published

HERZOG a violent article against the three in a local Yiddish daily, which, they say, used incorrect information and besmirched and offended them. The three men have since asked the editor of the paper to publish a correction; but he has refused to do so. They have therefore amended their suit to include him.

Date of trial has not yet been fixed.

Politics Costs Israeli's Job

TEL AVIV (JP)—A father of nine children recently was fired from his job in an orange grove because he supported the Progressive party, and not Mapai, according to veteran newsman Arie Gelblum, who told his story in the independent daily MAARIV.

Zacharia Tiram, 44, who arrived in Palestine in 1934, served nine years in the Jewish brigade and the Israel army, and later worked as a building foreman and in orange groves, was told by his orange grove supervisor that "by higher order" there was no more work for him. Later, he was informed by officials of the Labour Exchange that he was fired because he supports the Progressives.

With appeals and attempted interventions producing no results, Tiram's family is now desperate. "Perhaps the Christian missionaries alone would save my children," says the father.

Gelblum, who returned from three years in the United States, where he was the HAARETZ correspondent, shortly before uncovering the story of the firing, attempted to speak to the members of the Labour Exchange, but was told: "It's none of your business."

Bey of Tunis Friendly to Jews

TUNIS (WNS)—The Bey of Tunis, on receiving Charles Had-dad, president of the new Jewish Community Council of Tunis, spoke of Tunisian Jews as "my children" who "have lived for 2,000 years with my ancestors" and who "with the help of God" will "continue to be respected in my country."

The community council report-receipt of messages from the French resident general and other French officials assuring the Jewish representative body of France's sympathy for Tunisian Jews. At the same time it was reported by a number of Frenchmen and Moslems living in Tunisia that they had received anti-Semitic literature through the mail, with "international Jewry" and its alleged ambition to establish a worldwide empire as the chief target of attack.

Another source of concern to the Jewish community is the growing dissemination of anti-Jewish and anti-Israel propaganda among the Moslems here in the wake of the recent establishment here of a distribution agency for Egyptian newspapers and periodicals.

Sittin' In A Box Seat
Eatin' Goober Peas

By GEORGE VASS

TAKE HEART, young America! The days of Horatio Alger are far from over. New chapters of the Frank Merriwell story are still to be written.

In support and to wit:

Just about 25 years ago, when Connie Mack's Athletics and Gabby Street's Cardinals were cocks of the baseball walk, a Jewish youngster was peddling peanuts in a Memphis ball park. Considering the kid's subsequent career, it's safe to assume he sold a lot of peanuts. It's quite likely, however, he didn't miss much baseball.

But selling peanuts isn't the best ways to watch a ball game. It's much better to eat 'em while keeping an eye on the Chicks as they frolic with the Southern association opposition. The one-time peanut vendor is able to do that now—and without paying his way into the ball park.

Former peanut hawker, Lee Burson, now a prosperous lawyer and president of the South-eastern Zionist Organization, recently became owner of the Class AA Chicks when he purchased them from the Chicago White Sox. Burson backed up his faith in the future of wilting minor league baseball in the most convincing of fashions—with money.

Some prophets of doom and gloom, with apologies to Mr. E.) have unveiled the tombstone for the minor leagues even though the body is still perceptibly quivering. This doesn't faze Burson. He thinks that in the long run TV and radio will revive the corpse.

THIS WON'T SURPRISE readers fortunate enough to live in areas where the Pony Express or subsequent modern methods of communication have penetrated, but one-time yeshiva lad Samuel Reshevsky toppled Mikhail Botvinnik last week to become the uncrowned chess champion of the world.

Uncrowned is the proper adjective because, although Reshevsky defeated Botvinnik 2½ to 1½ in a four-game match in Moscow, it was what fisticuffs experts would refer to as a non-title fight.

Reshevsky has challenged Botvinnik to a 20-game match for the crown. Ten games would be played in New York and 10 in Moscow.

Chances of Botvinnik taking up the gauntlet seemed slim this week. Reason: Soviet chess spokesmen say that rules of the International Chess Federation give everyone an equal chance at the title and that as several Soviet players had as much "right" to challenge Botvinnik as Reshevsky had, a long tournament is necessary. Financial considerations would hamper Reshevsky from engaging in a long, drawn-out elimination.

ALAS AND ALACK for the admirers of homegrown Jewish prize fighters. Dynamitin' Dick Goldstein, who has made such a big splash in West Coast boxing in recent months, has been sunk almost without a gurgle. Dynamitin' Dick, whose fists had flailed through 17 consecutive opponents, apparently forgot to light his fuse last week when he took the field of battle versus one Jiggs Reed, an inhabitant of Oakland. The Warsaw-born fighter was snuffed out in convincing fashion by Reed, who seemingly hadn't read Dick's clippings.

Dynamitin' Dick was so wild, awkward and amateurish that his inordinate lack of perfection called forth sighs of pity from usually callous newspapermen. Said one sports scribe, through his tears: "It's a little difficult to believe that there are 17 worse welterweights in the ranks."

Touted as a coming sensation, Goldstein, a 5-to-1 choice, took a pasting from a steady left jab and sucker rights. His right eye was completely closed and his left optic was nearly as bad at the final bell.

SPORTS SHORTS . . . Sandy Coufax, bonus southpaw of the Dodgers, made his first major league start July 6 against the Pirates and issued eight walks before being lifted in the fifth inning. The youngster allowed only one hit going into the fifth, when two walks and two singles enabled the Pirates to tie the score at 1 to 1. . . . Lou Limmer, obtained several weeks ago by Toronto from Columbus, made an auspicious debut with his new team rapping a two-run single in the first inning to spark a 4-to-3 victory over Richmond. . . . Joe Ginsberg's top-notch receiving has played a great part in keeping Seattle way up in the Pacific Coast league standings.

TWO U. S. JEWISH CHOIRS LEAVING FOR ISRAEL'S CHORAL FESTIVAL

By LILI ELLER

Jewish Post Correspondent

Two "singing airplanes" will take off from New York this month, carrying a good will mission to Israel.

Traveling to Israel for the purpose of participating in the Second International Zimriya (Choir Festival) will be some 120 American Jews from all walks of life, gathered in two choirs. Together with choral groups from 13 other countries, such as Finland, Morocco, Yugoslavia, Italy, and others, the singers will be guests of the Israel government during their stay in the country.

They will be housed and fed (the Americans will make their headquarters at ZOA House in Tel Aviv), shown Israel from Dan to Eilat, and will be received by the municipalities of Jerusalem, Haifa, and Tel Aviv, in which the major concerts will be presented.

IN THE BELIEF that they have much to gain personally from a visit to Israel and that they are strengthening the cultural bridge between the Diaspora and Israel, some of the Americans will be undergoing the first such experience, while others will be comparing the Zimriya with the initial one in 1952.

The two choirs who represent American Jewry in the songfest will be conducted by Harry Coopersmith and Samuel Bugatch, both from New York. Coopersmith is musical director of the Jewish Education Committee, Mr. Bugatch the choirmaster of the Adath Israel in the Bronx.

The American singers, mostly amateurs with a sprinkling of cantors, range geographically from Los Angeles to Jacksonville, and New York. The youngest in the group is 15-year-old Susan Horn of Newark, New Jersey.

EACH OF the participating choirs—and there will be a number of Israeli choirs as well—will have its own repertoire—Jewish songs and songs of their native lands, but will also include three new numbers—winners of a world-wide contest for original choir compositions. These are based on the themes of 1, Jerusalem; 2, Creation of the State; 3, Ingathering of Exiles, and 4, Earth. The top composition in each category will be eligible for a cash prize from President Itzhak Ben-Zvi, and other government officials.

Some of the numbers the Americans will sing in the three principal cities, in villages, kibbutzim (collective settlements and Army camps include Yiddish ghetto songs, Hebrew folk songs, and two Negro melodies—Dry Bones, and Waterboy.

The cultural event will officially be launched by Prime Minister Moshe Sharett in Haifa on Aug. 7, and will end with a Tel Aviv banquet in honor of the visitors on Aug. 16.

If you want to know what is going on in any part of the U. S. Jewish community, read The JEWISH POST.

Sharpening up on their flats are these choir members who will match their notes against Jewish choral groups from 13 other countries in Israel. This is one of two American choirs which will participate in the Second International Zimriya this month and next.

Defense Minister David Ben-Gurion of Israel, in addressing the Israel American Friendship league at a dinner in honor of American Independence Day, said of the United States:

"May she always retain those three elements that have bestowed upon her the leadership of the free world: power, wisdom and goodwill."

Gordon Pirie, British international track star, after presenting prizes at the annual sports day held by the Wembley (England) District synagogue:

"It is not important to win if you take part in sports and enjoy it. When I was at school I did not always win races. Keep trying and perhaps you will one day be an international star."

Vandals Damage
Jewish Cemetery

NORTH BURNABY, B.C.—Metal stakes marking cemetery aisles were torn up, newly planted flowers uprooted, flower vases broken, and stones thrown on monuments and sand on the grass during the first of two nights of vandalism at Beth Israel cemetery here recently.

The second visit by vandals came five nights after the first, and during it water spigots were torn off.

A special policeman has been engaged to patrol the grounds until a caretaker, who will live on the premises, can be hired.

ZOA House Bomb
Laid to Fanatic
Or Irate Neighbor

TEL AVIV (WNS)—Police officials investigating last week's bombing here of the ZOA House, where two people were injured, said the perpetrator of the crime may either have been a disgruntled neighbor or a fanatic who resented production of a Yiddish play in the Zionist center.

Lending credence to the view that the bombing was the work of a linguistic extremist is the fact that the incident occurred during the performance of a Yiddish play, Abraham Goldfaden's "The Witch," with Dina Halpern, star of the Yiddish stage in the United States, in the main role. At the same time police officials noted that there had been recent complaints by residents of the area against garden affairs in the ZOA House and their resultant noise and commotion.

The ZOA House is maintained by the Zionist Organization of American as a cultural center and as a symbol of friendship between the Jews of America and Israel. Some months ago the ZOA House was formally dedicated to the memory of Daniel Frisch, the late ZOA president.

3 Children Didn't Deter Her From Getting Ph.D.

By EVE NEWMARK

NEWARK, N.J.

"Doc, may I please have a glass of water?" The thirsty voice came from the bedroom, where 10-year-old Stephen, who should have been asleep, felt he could use a little more attention from "mom."

"Mom," or "Doc," is pretty, slim Mrs. Doris Ruth Kraemer, the first woman to earn a Ph. D. degree from Yeshiva university, and now the favorite target of her youngest son's teasing.

"My two older sons, Joel, 15, and Andrew, who is 12, are much more dignified about the whole thing. After all, if it weren't for the help of all three boys and their dad, I could never have achieved that sheepskin, and part of the credit belongs to them."

"DAD" IS David Kraemer, a Newark, N.J., attorney, proud of the fact that after 19 years of marriage, the pretty third-year college student who became Mrs. Kraemer, has finally completed her studies with the imposing title of doctor of clinical psychology.

Since her marriage, she has acquired three degrees, and raised three handsome sons, as well as working on a part time basis as psychologist in the Jewish Vocational Service and Jewish Child Care Association of Newark.

"Being a mother, a student, and a practicing psychologist are all full-time chores," admitted Mrs. Kraemer, whose pleasantly authoritative voice was belied by her youthful appearance. She looked like a coed, clad in a simple white dress to challenge the oppressive Newark heat.

"HOWEVER," SHE laughed, "each of my three sons presented me with his own Pandora's box of unpredictables to work with, so that I learned more from them than in the classroom."

Exploring the possibilities of achieving a career and a normal family life, Mrs. Kraemer is convinced it is all primarily a matter of timing.

"You have to know when to quit. Being sensitive to the psychological moment when your children are ready to accept your outside activities, and when not, is very important. Each person's situation is different. Not until my second son, Andrew, also became a scholar—in nursery school—did I feel I could enter Columbia university for my master's degree. Joel, the eldest, was by then in grammar school, and Stephen had not yet arrived upon the scene.

MY SCHEDULE was always very flexible, and from year to year I never really knew how

Doc Gets a Hand

Mrs. Doris Ruth Kraemer, first woman to earn a Ph. D. at Yeshiva university, gets congratulated by her favorite men, her husband and three sons. Lining up to shake "Doc's" hand are Stephen, 10, Andrew, 12, Joel, 15, and husband David.

long summer in which, for the first time, she would be free to do nothing but enjoy a good rest and some fun. Later, she planned to restrict herself to merely two jobs—being a mother and continuing as chief psychologist at the Jewish Vocational Service and Jewish Child Care Association.

"Actually, what I have accomplished is not at all unusual these days—dovetailing career and family is no longer the exception for women. For me, it was a wonderful experience in co-operation. But all the excitement about my degree really stems from one thing—being the first woman awarded the Ph. D. degree by Yeshiva university in all its 69 years of existence. I am proud to be the first, and hope the women who follow will find the experience as rewarding."

"Doc," came the sleepy voice again, "can I have another glass of water?"

Both mother and psychologist agreed discreetly to disregard the summons, and smiled as a drowsy "Goodnight, Doc" drifted back from the bedroom.

Non-Jews Thank
In Material Way

SAN FRANCISCO (JP)—Voluntary pledges of almost $10,000 from 112 non-Jews have been made to the Jewish Welfare Fund's 1955 campaign here, Chairman Samuel A. Ladar has reported.

This generous unsolicited response from Christians is an annual feature of the campaign here, Ladar said. He disclosed the contents of a note accompanying one of the pledges to illustrate the spirit that motivates them:

"A very small token of appreciation for all that the San Francisco Jewish people do for the non-Jewish community."

things would turn out. But fortunately, I was blessed with a very cooperative—and healthy—family, who encouraged me to do persist."

In 1952 she entered Yeshiva university for her doctorate, at the same time working in the two agencies as part-time psychologist.

Her face lit up as she spoke of her three years at Yeshiva. "There is a rare esprit de corps amongst students and faculty which I did not find elsewhere. You feel no sense of competitiveness, but rather an eagerness to understand your problems on the part of everyone you work with—a genuine give-and-take which moves every student to do his best work. Partly, the close communication between students and teachers is due to small classes, but chiefly to a common meeting ground."

AS TO HER plans for the future? At the present, she had just completed packing trunks—three of them—one for each boy to take along to summer camp, so there had been no time, since graduation, to do much thinking ahead. However, there was the

I THINK AS I PLEASE

Favored Visitors Enjoy Special Tour Of Israel

By CARL ALPERT

HAIFA—We have often been moaned the fact that the average tourist visitor to Israel spends no more than about 10 days in the country. In that brief period of time he tries to take in as many sights as possible, rushes about the land without rest, obtains a confused and kaleidoscopic picture, and goes home with the feeling that everything was a blur. Now if we had the chance to take a couple of tourists in hand and guide them properly, we have always said, we could plan their stay for no less than 10 weeks, and we would . . .

Well, opportunity came our way. After suitable and proper advance notice, Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Tennenbaum of Cincinnati arrived on their first visit to Israel. Their program was in our hands. Tourists who spend all their time in hotels never get really close to the "natives" of our land, we said, and so the Tennenbaums moved into our apartment and lived with us for 10 weeks.

WHEN THEY TALK about the children of Israel, they do not refer to the dozens of smiling youngsters who wave at tourists in the passing buses and taxis, but to our own children whom they observed in their home and at play and at school. Mrs. Tennenbaum had a chance to get into the kitchen and see what an Israel housewife goes through in preparing meals. She had a chance to prepare real old-fashioned gefilte fish from Israel-grown carp. She went shopping in the market, stood in line at the greengrocer, checked the ration books, exchanged gossip in the hallway of the apartment house with Israeli neighbors.

The Tennenbaums got to see all the usual tourist sights, but had something extra added on at almost every spot. Besides visiting the famous spots and looking at the magnificent views they were taken on a private trip through a Druze village. Instead of just talking about the Yemenites, they visited at the home of a Yemenite family in Zichron Yaacov. They had tea with Professor and Mrs. Lowdermilk.

INSTEAD OF speeding through the agricultural villages, stopping only for a 45-minute explanation, they spent a full week end in one such village. Their stay coincided with Israel Independence Day, and we exploited every hour of the holiday. They attended a reception by the Mayor of Haifa, they had grandstand seats for the huge and impressive military demonstration at Ramath Gan, and they wound their way at night through the tens of thousands of youth gaily dancing in the streets.

Ninety-nine per cent of the opinions and bits of information gathered by tourists in Israel come from taxi drivers, waiters and hotel clerks, many of whom have developed a professional patter for the purpose. The Tennenbaums got close to the average citizen. The tax collector, an insurance man, an engineer, a teacher, the shamas in a shule, several storekeepers, a rabbi's wife—these and many more were their source of information, and the result is a picture of Israel much more in focus than that received by other visitors.

OF COURSE, they took in all

Young readers of THE POST, who want to write to Israelis, and do not find the age or a name that attracts them, may write directly to The Post, Box 1633, Indianapolis post office. A line or so about your hobbies or interests would be helpful.

Young Americans who receive interesting letters as they correspond with Israelis are invited to submit them to The Post. Those judged best will be printed in this column from time to time.

the institutions of note. Mrs. Tennenbaum, as a past president of a Hadassah chapter, did not miss a Hadassah hospital, clinic, school or youth village anywhere. Mr. Tennenbaum utilized the same time to make the rounds of the yeshivas. In Jerusalem, especially, he became almost a daily visitor until his book of traveler's checks began to wear thin. Both of them visited the Technion, Israel Institute of Technology, and with a little pull, got an inside view of that impressive institution.

They went to Sodom and Caesarea; to Nazareth and Bnei Brak; to Safed and Magdiel. The 10 weeks sped by, but they never felt in a hurry. They could enjoy the leisure of many swims at Israel's beaches. If time did not suffice for one visit, they could always go back for a second, and they frequently retraced their steps. They traveled by train and bus and private car, and once even hitch-hiked. And everywhere they had the leisure to talk to people and exchange views on politics, economics, world affairs, shopping—or the furniture business.

But even the 10 weeks at last came to an end. We put them safely aboard the S.S. Jerusalem, and bid farewell to our favorite tourists. You see, the Tennenbaums are not utter strangers. They are my wife's parents. The taste of that gefilte fish still lingers in my mouth!

Good for Israel — Or Not Good for Israel

by M. Z. FRANK

The Zionist Organization was created in order to have an effective instrument for serving the Zionist cause. The only standard by which the Zionist organization should be judged is how well it serves the cause. When high placed Zionist leaders and officials like Nahum Goldman and Samuel Margoshes, begin to declare that the cause of Zionism is not Zion, but something else, we have the unmistakable signs that something is very much wrong with the organization.

The Zionist cause is predicated on the desire for Jewish survival. No Jew who is indifferent to Jewish survival could be interested in having a large self-governing Jewish population in the Holy Land. But to say that the primary purpose of Zionism is Jewish survival is nonsense. Anyone who tries to ensure the continued existence of Jewish physical and spiritual identity anywhere is working for Jewish survival. Some of the most active survivalists are non-Zionists and even anti-Zionists. All Jewish organizations, including the American Council for Judaism, are in favor of Jewish survival in one form or another. If the Jews of America were suddenly to cease being Jews, the Council would have to go out of business. And, believe me, Rabbi Goldberg, Rabbi Berger and William Zuckerman are no more interested in self-liquidation than any Zionist functionary.

DR. I. N. STEINBERG, former member of Lenin's cabinet and a strictly observant Jew, thinks the rise of the State of Israel is a calamity which he tries to swallow with as good grace as he can muster. He still thinks the surest and best way to insure Jewish survival is to have a Jewish territory in any of the countries which might want to grant the Jews a territory—Australia, Surinam, the Moon, Mars—anywhere, so long as it is not Palestine, so long as the Jews there won't have a sovereign state and an army, and so long as the language is Yiddish, with Hebrew taught as a higher subject in the schools.

While I consider his ideas funny, I cannot deny that he is as much interested in Jewish survival as any Zionist, myself included. As a Jew steeped in Jewish culture, Dr. Steinberg is a better man than most Zionists who adopt resolutions on culture with a real interest in it.

Recently, a convention of former Bundists in Montreal adopted resolutions which condemned activities for Israel as draining the energies of the Jews and preventing them from engaging in constructive activities for Jewish survival in the countries where they live. I never approved of the Bund; least of all that section which is so blinded by hatred for Israel that it adopts lunatic resolutions. I am not enthusiastic over the prospect of laying all stress in Jewish survival on the Yiddish language, as nearly all Bundists do. Their survival is not my survival. But I cannot deny that they are genuinely interested in Jewish survival—according to their own lights.

THE ZIONIST CAUSE is the cause of Jewish survival—but of a certain kind of Jewish survival; it is survival through Israel. A Zionist is one who believes that in the modern world only a sizable, self-governing Jewish community in Palestine can insure Jewish survival.

That still leaves plenty of room for difference of opinion among Zionists. But, at least, that definition confines the discussion to its natural limits.

The Zionist cause is older and greater than the organized Zionist movement. Baron Edmond Rothschild did more to finance Jewish colonization in Palestine than the Zionist organization before World War I. He firmly believed in the Zionist cause, but for a long time refused to see any good in the methods and structure of the Zionist organization.

ISRAEL ROKACH and Joseph Saphir, the two leading cabinet members of the General Zionists in Israel, are native Palestinian Jews, who just had no use for the World Zionist Organization. They wanted a Jewish state as much as any Zionist. But they did not think that a bunch of delegates from Warsaw, Vilno and New York meeting at the Zionist Congress in Basle, could accomplish it. Besides, the Zionist Organization was dominated by a bunch of radicals like Ben-Gurion, who had come to Palestine rather late in the day anyway, later than they did, so what good could it be?

But, as soon as it looked to them that by joining the World Zionist Organization they would engage the powerful support of Silver and Neumann in their fight on Mapai, they became staunch champions of the organized Zionist movement. Some people think that Ben-Gurion is dead set against the World Zionist Organization, because Mapai could not dominate it. Maybe. But somehow or other, other Mapai leaders, like Berl Locker, who hold high offices in the WZO, do not share's B.G.'s views.

The most reasonable approach is to make allowances for vested interests and judge each argument on its merits by the one and only standard by which Zionists would be guided: Good for Israel or not good for Israel.

Israel Appeal Needs On Rise, Says Stone

NEW YORK (JP)—The agencies of the United Israel Appeal have been forced by increased needs to spend $2 million more during the first half of 1955 than the organization's budgetary estimate.

Expenditures in excess of $46 million have been necessitated by the pressure of immigration and the need to "resettle newcomers in Israel from North Africa," according to a report issued last week by Dewey D. Stone, UIA national chairman.

The needs in Israel, Dewey reported, made it necessary for the Jewish Agency for Palestine to incur a $10 million deficit, of which $7 million represented long-term loans and the rest short-term credits.

The report said that $28 million was spent in the general field of immigration, explaining that of the 12,000 arrivals during the half-year about 65 per cent took up agriculture, 20 per cent settled in new development areas and the rest joined relatives in urban and rural areas.

Historic Jewish
Sites in U. S.

This column is based on the book, "A Jewish Tourist's Guide to the U. S." by Bernard Postal and Lionel Koppman, Philadelphia. The Jewish Publication Society of America. 1954. 670 pages, $5.00.

By LIONEL KOPPMAN

A site to see in Quincy, Ill., is the Abraham Jonas Monument in the city's Jewish cemetery. The monument honors the memory of a Masonic leader whom Lincoln called "one of my best friends."

Jonas had the distinction of serving as Grand Master of Masons in two states — Kentucky and Illinois. From 1827 to 1838, he lived at Williamstown, Ky., where he was elected to the state legislature and also served as Grand Master of Masons of Kentucky. In 1838, he moved to Quincy and two years later became the Grand Master of Masons of Illinois. He was admitted to the bar in Illinois and won a seat in the state legislature in 1842. There he met Lincoln and the two formed what was to become a life-long friendship.

When the Republican Party nominated its first candidate for the Presidency in 1856, Jonas and Lincoln were Fremont presidential electors. The two men corresponded regularly and Jonas worked hard to elect Lincoln to the Senate in 1858 when he ran against Stephen A. Douglas. Right after Lincoln's nomination for the Presidency, Jonas warned Lincoln that political foes were collecting documents in an effort to prove that he had belonged to the old anti-alien Know-Nothing Party. Lincoln asked Jonas to take the lead in denying the accusation. After his election, Lincoln appointed Jonas postmaster of Quincy, a post he had held earlier under Presidents Taylor and Fillmore.

Ironically, Jonas' four sons served in the Confederate Army. When Jonas lay dying, in 1864, his family interceded with Lincoln on behalf of one of the sons, Charles, who had been taken prisoner. Lincoln cut red tape and got Charles a three-week furlough. After Jonas' death, Lincoln named Mrs. Jonas to fill out the unexpired term as postmaster (postmistress) of Quincy.

EGYPTIAN CULT SEEN AIDING JUDAISM IN DAYS OF MOSES

By GERALD M. LITTMAN
Jewish Post Correspondent

LOS ANGELES (JP)—Prolonged contact between Jews and Egyptians may have played an important part in developing the Hebrew religious heritage passed on to Christianity, according to Lee Garmes, top Hollywood cinematographer, who recently returned from Egypt, where he was director of photography for the film, "Land of the Pharaohs."

"I want to emphasize that I'm neither a Biblical scholar nor an archaeologist," said Garmes. "But while we were in Egypt I became deeply interested in discovering what influences, if any, Egyptian culture and religion may have had on the Israelites."

"I FOUND THAT until quite recently some very well-informed and prominent authorities questioned whether the Jews were ever in Egypt at all, despite the Biblical account of the Exodus."

"Although their skepticism apparently can't be supported in light of recent discoveries, I'm unable to find any written book that sets out systematically to trace the mutual influence of the Israelites and their captors on each other."

GARMES POINTS out that if the Hebrews were in Egypt during the time of Amenhotep IV (14th Century B. C. E.) they hardly could have remained aloof from the clash between the "old" religion of Amen-Ra and a heresay, led by the Pharaoh, known as Aton.

"One of the central tenets of the Aton cult was a monotheism that may have influenced the Is-

Garmes believes that every Biblical literature felt the influence of Egyptian culture. In the 104th Psalm, for example, he finds an imagery and phraseology strikingly similar to that of Amenhotep IV's hymn to the sun.

We needn't even finish Mark Twain's famous comment: "Everybody talks about the weather . . ." Indeed they do And I hereby resolve not to feel warmer when the next person asks: "Hot enough for you?"

For this is the summer we were wishing for during winter's icy blasts. There are things we can do about it. We balabostes have many little comfort-givers to help the family stay cool and comfortable on the warmest days.

For one things, we can refrain from talking about heat, perhaps even from thinking too much about it. When I was a little girl in one of the hottest Midwestern cities, it was a family custom for the children to bathe and dress just before Papa came home, so that he might be greeted by a relaxed and prettified family.

In those days before showers, Mama had a bath tub drawn and ready for the balabos to dip into as soon as he came home. Sometimes she dissolved some salt in the tepid water for stimulation. Sometimes cornstarch was the comfort giver. Sometimes baking soda, by the handful. BY DINNER TIME we all had clean and shining faces, un-wrinkled lightweight summer attire, and good spirits. The electric fan was placed on the floor to stir up the coolest air. The window blinds had been drawn to keep the sunlight out all day. The walks had been hosed down to take some of the warmth out of the cement. All in all, we were comfortable. And who knows if it was physical or psychological cool we felt?

The dwellers in tropical climates have a lesson we might all make use of this time of year. They do their work in the cool of morning or evening, and rest during the hottest hours. They serve dinner at a late hour. They stimulate jaded appetites with flavorful food. This is the time to serve something salty with the salad. The body needs salt to replace what is lost through perspiration. A hot, clear broth is a very good pick-up before the meal because of the salt in it, and because it will stimulate the digestive juices.

I try to keep the cookie jar filled by baking on rainy days or cool mornings. And on days when meat seems just too heavy to serve remember that the body's requirements for nourishment don't differ with the seasons. Protein may be served in the form of eggs, cheese, smetana, legumes or nuts, all of which seem extra appetizing in the summer. We need more vitamin C from green vegetables and fruits in the summer, too. But those are the foods we naturally crave.

well blended. Add cream, seasonings and melted butter which has been cooled. Beat until blended. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold into mixture. Pour into pastry shell. Bake for 10 minutes at 450 degrees, then reduce heat to 350 degrees. Continue baking 20 to 25 minutes or until a table knife inserted in the center comes out clean. Serve hot. With a fruit or vegetable salad this makes a light but nourishing meal. Serves six.

APPLESAUCE SHERBET (Thanks to Mrs. Wolff of Minneapolis)

2 cups buttermilk
1 can applesauce (or 1½ cups home-made sauce)
¾ cup sugar
½ cup lemon juice

Mix all ingredients until well blended. Pour into two ice-cube trays and freeze at the coldest setting until firm. May be beaten when partially frozen, for an extra smooth result. Serves 6 to 8.

A Word To The Wives

This is the time to get out every electric appliance you own.

And to try new ways of using them.

The sandwich grill is fine for frying eggs, for instance. The blender makes wonderful grated potatoes for latkes or kugel.

And above all, "think cool!"

Bar Mitzva Ideas Sound Mighty Good

The Southeast seems to be making a bit of news on the subject of Bar and Bat Mitzvas. For one thing, in Atlanta, Ga., the officials of the Ahavath Achim congregation have set a few rules calling for "simpler refreshments" at the Kiddush, according to the SOUTHERN ISRAELITE.

There are to be no more platters of cold cuts or sliced turkey. It is thumbs down on hot hors d'oeuvres and fancy molds. Of course, there will be some who feel that the permitted menu is still a bit too lenient, but at least some progress has been made. The menu is limited to "a simple bill of fare—herring, gefilte fish, chopped liver, bread, kichel, sweets and drinks." (That "sweets and drinks" could get mighty elaborate, methinks.)

There is, obviously, no attempt to dictate to the family on the matter of celebrations away from the synagogue, which means that such affairs in connection with a Bar Mitzva as a dance or open house will continue to be as elaborate or simple as the family wishes.

Bar Mitzva

ISAACS—Mr. and Mrs. Max proudly announce the Bar Mitzvah of their son, Roger, July 9, at Camp Lokanda, Glen Spey, N. Y.

Births

CANTOR—Dr. and Mrs. Robert Lloyd Cantor announce the birth of a son, Eric Scott, July 8, 1955, at Klingenstein Pavilion, Mount Sinai Hospital.

Engagements

WORONER-GOLDSTEIN — Mr. and Mrs. Carl Goldstein are happy to announce the engagement of their daughter, Sandra, to Mr. Melvin Woroner, son of Mrs. Yetta Woroner and the late Mr. Isak Woroner.

FINKELSTEIN - SILVERMAN — Dr. and Mrs. Jacob R. Silverman of 49 St. Marks Place, New York City, announce the engagement of their daughter, Harriet, to Jordan W. Finkelstein, son of Dr. and Mrs. Hyman Finkelstein. The bride-to-be is attending Barnard College. Her fiancé is a graduate of the University College of New York University, where he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, and is at present attending New York University College of Medicine.

Weddings

made at the Kiddush. The formal receiving line which preceded the Kiddush found many guests through eating before the family had finished greeting the people, which meant that papa "never even saw how nice the refreshments that cost so much looked." The new order eliminates the receiving line, has the group seated and presided over by the rabbi and as they finish, they "extend felicitations to the parents in a more leisurely fashion."

Another item, in the AMERICAN JEWISH TIMES of Carolina described a Bat Mitzva in Virginia attended by six young ladies who assisted her in presenting a floral offering. Sounds pretty but me, I'm for keeping things simple.

I might add a bit of a twist that has made itself felt in our synagogue where our young ladies are also Bat Mitzva candidates and thereafter allowed to go up to the Torah.

More and more often when a young person becomes a Bar or Bat Mitzva, he or she chooses to honor not only close members of the family but a friend or two. One such Bar Mitzva celebration found two young ladies going up to the Torah who turned out to be "good friends" of the young man. It could come to have the significance of getting his fraternity pin, though calling up more than one would complicate matters.

PAUL V. MATKIN, 5878 Ralston, Indianapolis, wrote in regard to my June 17 article in which I expressed my belief that girls are being educated and trained along the wrong lines if their hoped-for destination is to be a housewife and mother.

Mr. Matkin says, in part: "Both men and women need to learn how to work at the basic tasks of life, and this cannot relieve us of many dull jobs, at times, but just the same if we can't take it when such work needs to be done, I feel there is something missing in our character as men or women. To come out so plainly, as you have, will no doubt make some young girls who believe themselves to be above such ideas, ready to tar and feather you; but I am sure that most of the older and more experienced women and nearly all of the thinking men will be on your side in the issue..."

Thanks for your kind words of encouragement, Mr. Matkin. I really believe that most of the trouble with women is not that they are indolent, although it is possible for even well-brought-

FAMILY PSYCHOLOGIST

CHILDREN SHOULD LEARN TO RESPECT CONVICTIONS, CUSTOMS OF OTHERS

By MILTON A. SAFFIR, Ph.D.

Director, Chicago Psychological Guidance Center

The Berman family was getting ready for a visit to Mrs. Berman's parents. They lived so far away that such visits could be made only at rare intervals, and the whole family looked forward to a happy few weeks together.

Among the preparations which Mrs. Berman had the foresight to make, was an explanation to the children of the Jewish customs which their grandparents observed. The grandparents were very pious Orthodox folks, but the Bermans were members of a Reform Temple, and the children had never had any intimate contact with Orthodox Judaism.

If the visit to the grandparents' home is to be pleasant for everyone, the children will refrain from doing things which will offend their grandparents' feelings. Turning on a light on the Sabbath is a matter of no consequence in the Bermans' home, but it will be a grave sin in the eyes of grandmother and grandfather. Asking for milk at a meat meal may be as routine for the Bermans as asking for a slice of bread, but it will offend the grandparents.

THE POINT OF view and feelings of those who observe strictly and piously a particular ritual are sometimes quite difficult for a non-practicing individual to appreciate. This is particularly true where a person who does not observe a custom has rejected or modified it. It may be psychologically easier for a Jew who does not observe kashrut to respect a Catholic's refusal to eat meat on Friday than to be tolerant of a Jew's refusal to eat trefa. The non-observant Jew up girls to turn out lazy or self-centered. I believe girls are just being trained wrong. Women who spend their childhood at everything but that, are not going to miraculously find themselves at home in the kitchen once the wedding ring is on, or wielding a mop or dustcloth.

And that reminds me of our young lady of 13, who in spite of the many other interests that take up her time and thoughts, finally is beginning to show signs of becoming a real homemaker. One phase of housekeeping still leaves her cold, for good reason. She is so averse to taking out the scraps to the garbage can that I seldom require her to do this choice. One day she stated with finality, "When I get married, I don't care if we're rich or poor, we're going to have a garbage disposal."

I didn't stop to explain at that moment (she'll learn soon enough) that if one is poor, one has trouble keeping one's family in decent garbage cans.

will be more apt to want to argue with the pious one, or to be contemptuous of his practices.

TO ONE WHO observes the dietary laws, on the other hand, it is quite irritating to have a fellow-Jew call his practices old-fashioned or explain that the dietary laws were good before modern methods of sanitation and hygiene were evolved, for to him his observance is not for reasons of sanitation, nor is his practice any more old-fashioned to him than such old virtues as justice or kindness.

Tolerance and respect for the viewpoints of others represent very important values in American Jewish life. It is unfortunate that so many Jewish families are much more aware of these values as they apply to the relationship of Jews and Christians than to the relationships among Orthodox, Conservative, Reform, and other kinds of Jews.

CHILDREN SHOULD be taught to be firm in their convictions of what is right and what is wrong. But they should also be taught to respect those who have different convictions. That respect often involves no more than simple courtesy—refraining from acts which are inoffensive according to one's own belief but wrong according to the other's convictions.

Sensitivity to the feelings of others is not always easy to develop, particularly if those feelings are different than one's own in the same situation. Parents should seek to encourage that quality in their children, however, and learning to understand the religious ideas of other kinds of Jew is one step in that direction.

WHAT PROBLEMS or topics would you like to have discussed in this column? Readers are invited to submit questions or comments to Dr. Saffir, in care of The NATIONAL JEWISH POST, P.O.B. 1633, Indianapolis 6, Ind., or directly to his office, 55 E. Washington St., Chicago 2, Ill. Names will be withheld upon request.

DEATHS

Dov Shkira, 50, Dies;
Histadrut Official

TEL AVIV—Don Shkira, 50, secretary of Am Oved, the Histadrut publishing house, editorial board and, until recently, editor of the Knesset reports, died so unexpectedly on July 4 that early reports alleged suicide.

Mr. Shkira was going up the stairs of an office building when he fell over a fourth-floor railing. Three days earlier, he was hit by a car and suffered a brain concussion, but his condition was not considered serious.

A native of Vilna, Lithuania, Mr. Shkira came to Palestine in 1925. Later, he studied in Paris. After his return to Palestine in 1935, he was secretary of the Hassneh insurance company for many years. He was a lover of fine arts and old books.

Abraham C. Litton, 61

NEW YORK—Abraham C. Litton, 61, national vice-president of the American Organization for Rehabilitation Through Training, died in Paris on July 9. In 1940, to assist ORT, Mr. Litton established the first free school in New York for vocational training of Jewish refugees. Born in Moscow, he emigrated to France and settled permanently in New York in 1939. He was an executive of the Lit-Den Construction company, a builder and operator of residential properties.

Dr. Henry Weiss, 64

PHOENIX—Dr. Henry Weiss, 64, head of the Congregation Beth El religious school here, died June 15. Dr. Weiss was a retired dentist. He came to Phoenix five years ago. Before moving to Phoenix, he was a past master of the Rockaway, L.I., Masonic lodge, and also a past master of the Knights of Pythias there.

Israel Silver, 90

HARTFORD, Conn. — Israel Silver, 90, who retired in about 1900 in order to devote his remaining years to Zionism, died recently. Mr. Silver founded the Zionist movement in Hartford at the turn of the century. In 1909, he made his first trip to Israel, and in 1928, he made his home there. When Arab snipers fired into his home, he brought his family to America, hoping to return as soon as hostilities ended. World War II stopped him. When Israel's independence was declared, he refused to return, feeling he would be a burden on the state.

Morris Schoenberg, 39

NORWICH, Conn. — Morris Schoenberg, 39, a leading worker for the United Jewish Appeal and Israel Bonds, among other causes, died June 16. Mr. Schoenberg was a member of B'nai B'rith, United Commercial Travelers, the Hebrew Benevolent association, Brothers of Joseph and Beth Jacob synagogues, Elks, Moose, Power Squadron, and the State Police auxiliary. He lived nearly all of his life in Norwich.

Philip Battelstein, 85

HOUSTON—Philip Battelstein, 85, an early member of Congregation Adath Yeshurun and a charter member of Congregation Beth El and later Beth Yushurun, died July 4. Mr. Battelstein was a penniless immigrant in 1880. He learned tailoring in St. Louis, opened a shop in Houston, and by steady building left a multimillion dollar outstanding men's, women's, and boys' store. "Pop," as he was called, was said never to have turned away a man in need.

Charles S. Mayer, 98

PHILADELPHIA—Charles S. Mayer, 98, who was paid the full amount of a $3,000 policy two years ago because he exceeded the life span of the insurance

Your Name

Want to know what your name means? Address your question to Mr. Pearlroth, National Jewish Post, Box 1633, Indianapolis 6, Indiana.

By N. PEARLROTH

DEAR MR. PEARLROTH: I am interested in the meaning and origin of the name Aguado. My parents came from the town of Kana Kale, Dardanelles, Turkey. I know that they (my ancestors) were driven out of Spain during the Inquisition and that's about all I know.—JOSEPH AGUADO, Flushing, Long Island, New York.

AGUADO is now a good Spanish term meaning "an abstinent, a teetotaler, a person to whom wine is repugnant." But the Sephardic family name is derived from the Portuguese, where it signifies "a sharp-witted, ingenious fellow" in line with the English term "acute." The name is still widespread in Spain and Portugal and also among the Sephardic exiles in the Balkans. Among the latter was Alexandre-Marie Aguado (1784-1842) who in spite of his Jewishness was made a Spanish marquis and made a fortune of $12 million within a short time just to prove that it could be done.

DEAR MR. PEARLROTH: I would appreciate your telling me the origin of the name Liberman.—S. LIBERMAN, Winnipeg, Manitoba.

LIBERMAN also spelled Lieberman is an elaboration of the Hebrew forename Eliezer. It is in fact an affectionate diminutive of the Hebrew name. They added "man" first and obtained Lieserman. The change was unintelligible to subsequent generations and so they amended it to Lieberman which has the approximate meaning of "dear fellow" and left it at that. Later the forename became a family name for the reason that it had a German sound. For some strange reason two additional Hebrew names were later included. They are Jehuda and Matthias.

company's mortality table, died July 5. He took out the policy he collected in 1905. Mr. Mayer, a coat and suit manufacturer until he retired in 1942 at the age of 85, formerly operated the Philadelphia Cloak and Suit company.

Charles H. Lee

MIAMI—Charles H. Lee, secretary of the Miami Beach Israel Zionist organization, died unexpectedly July 1, while at the Copake country club in New York. Mr. Lee was a noted astronomer, news commentator, and lecturer. A retired civil engineer, he was a member of B'nai B'rith and other civic, philanthropic and cultural groups.

Samuel Glesby, 73

WINNIPEG, Sask. — Samuel Glesby, a founder and vice-president of the Winnipeg Beach synagogue, died July 6 following a two-month illness. Mr. Glesby was active in Chevra Linas Hazedek, Independent B'nai Abraham society, Adas Yeshurun synagogue, and the latter's Chevra Tehilim society.

BAS SHEVA SEEMS BEST ARGUMENT FOR LADY CANTORS IN LONG TIME

By JOSEPH GALE

Capitol Records has the best argument yet for lady cantors. She is a dramatic-looking, torch-and-blues singer who performs under the name of Bas Sheva. In a 10-inch LP called "Soul of a People," Bas Sheva compounds a heady brew of 52d Street (a dash), Second Avenue (a sprinkling), the synagogue (a full cup), and small draughts of pure hokum.

Bas Sheva may indeed possess some cantorial training, or at least have absorbed a measure of it from her father, who was a cantor. Other female artists have tried to invade what since the beginning of time has been an exclusively male province, but none have thrown themselves into the spirit of their work so exultantly as Bas Sheva. She is able to rip off a high cantorial phrase like a hot clarinet, and when choosing to use her throaty lower tones, she is a very musical woman, indeed.

THERE IS SOME schmaltz here, of course, impossible to keep out. But, by and large, Bas Sheva does a reasonably honest job of poaching on man's preserve. Her work, whatever Capitol intended it to be, emerges with a lot more logic and is easier to listen to than that of many of her male counterparts. She has something of the real feeling of traditional worship, and if it is true that a cantor stands before the Lord and speaks for his people, then count me in.

The selections Bas Sheva sings are "Zorea Tzedokos," "She-Yibone Beis Hamikdosh," "Mee She-Oso Nisim," "Habeit," "Sim Sholom," and "Retzei." Harold Mooney conducting an orchestra provides the background music.

RELIGIOUS SCHOOL teachers at their wits end what to do with the little darlings, especially the younger ones who value a fleeting glance out the window above and beyond an instructive moment at the blackboard, will find comfort in a new publication of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations called "Sing For Fun!" by Ray M. Cook.

This spiral-bound book contains 26 songs, most of them scarcely longer than a phrase, set to original melodies of fantastic simplicity. Divided into "Holiday Songs," "The Story of Creation," "In the Temple," and "Songs of Good Cheer," the tiny tunes are easily pantomimed and are useful in furthering religious spirit in the very young while continuing their alter egos in a state of satisfaction.

All the songs have been pre-tested, the Union says, and the finding is that children sing them for the sheer joy of singing, not only in religious school, but what is more significant, at home. It takes a very special mind to stay in touch with children, and I am willing to concede that Mrs. Cook is zeroed in.

Some New Books To Assist In Teaching Jewish Child

By ABRAHAM BURSTEIN

The textbook on modern Hebrew grammar and composition to end all similar publications has just been issued by the Hebrew Publishing company, which specializes in the books used in Hebrew classes in New York schools. Sefer HaDikduk v'haChibbur, by Dr. Harry Blumberg ($4), has rules, illustrations, vocabularies in groups, conversational helps, composition exercises, and everything else the student may need, magnificently done, both in method and printed format. Recommended for pop and mom, too.

If it is a Hebrew primer you need, turn to the two spirally bound Shanah Tovah books by Rabbi Noah Golinkin of Arlington, Va. ($1.25 each). These are photographed from the author's original written text and pictures. All the important prayers, blessings, readings, and holiday observances, are taught so pleasantly that the pupil becomes an authority on Hebrew language and Jewish teachings with only a minimum of exertion.

And then there is a book really for adults, but that may profitably be read by older children. Prejudice and Your Child, by Kenneth B. Clark ($2.50, Beacon Press), through exposition and example, shows how any youngster, particularly one in "minority" groups, can become happy and content, without hating or being hated. The main difficulty is that of color, but "The tendency of older Jewish children suggests that they have learned that Jews do not have a preferred status in the larger society, and that these children have accordingly modified their self-appraisal." Which means that use of this fine work can help to make better adult Jews.

THE EDITOR'S CHAIR

One of the needs of a paper like The POST is for more reader participation. This is why we've sought to give more space to letters from readers, but that isn't all I have in mind.

I have in mind the kind of readers' contributions the Christian Science Monitor gets. If you read this top daily publication, you'll find in it delightful descriptions of interesting occasions, travelogues, unusual happenings, all submitted by the readers, and most of it couched in the finest prose.

With that thought in mind, I wrote to 10 readers in small towns throughout the U. S. It was more than six months ago, and I asked if they'd describe for you what it was like to live as a Jew in a small town. I received, up until now, only one reply—or perhaps two—telling me that though they lived in a small town, they really were in suburbs of a neighboring large city and wouldn't fit into the category that I had outlined.

But this week, came a letter from Sam Fine, of Metter, Ga., which I'm happy to share with you. I hope other readers, not only those in small towns, will begin to send in contributions of interesting happenings in their lives, limiting them to 200 to 250 words. These letters would make up a new page of material from readers which, I feel sure, would be as interesting a section of The POST as any other.

DEAR MR. COHEN:

Some time ago you asked me in a letter to give an account of Jewish life in our town and community. At the time your letter came my wife and I were planning a trip to Europe and Israel and I didn't have the time to comply with your request.

We have since made this trip and I am enclosing herewith a little history of our community and of the Jewish families living here.

I thoroughly enjoy your paper and look forward to its coming every Friday.

SAM FINE.

The town of Metter, of which I have been a resident for nearly 40 years, is in the southeastern section of Georgia, about 70 miles from Savannah. It is strictly a farming community with very little industry. However, our surrounding territory is very fortunate in its fertile soil and proud in its citizenry.

Our soil is suitable and highly productive for all general farming purposes, the growing of cotton, tobacco, corn, peanuts and the extensive raising of live stock.

Metter is a town of about 2500 and the county site of Candler county.

For a number of years, from the very founding of the town, about the year 1900, we have had Jewish merchants here. However, none of them stayed here very long, until a Mr. Jake Fine, an uncle of the writer, opened a store here about 1911. Since then the best stores and practically the only department stores here have been owned and run by Jews. At present we have four Jewish families here, three of us having lived here for many years, the writer since 1914.

Our relations with our Gentile neighbors have been most friendly. There is not the slightest hint or tinge of anti-Semitism. One of our group has recently been elected Worshipful Master of the local Masonic Lodge. The writer several years ago was president of the local Kiwanis Club and on several occasions has served as commander of the local American Legion Post, as Post Adjutant and at present is Service Officer.

All of us are affiliated with synagogues in near-by cities. One family is affiliated with the Fitzgerald Synagogue, about 100 miles from here. Another family is affiliated with a synagogue in Augusta and the writer and the other family belong to B'nai B'rith Jacob, Savannah, Ga.

All four families are on very friendly terms. We visit at each other's homes and generally remember the fact that as Jews there should not be any jealousy or animosity between us.

Not having a congregation of our own here, we are not as active in Jewish affairs as we would like to be. But, we never forget the fact that we are Jews. Our stores are closed on the High Holidays and we are not ashamed of the fact that we are Jews.

Of course, there is this disadvantage of living in a small town and some distance from a

A certain U. S. anti-Zionist publication which hides a penchant for dishonest reporting behind its anti-Zionist skirts, comes forward with the astounding expose that some $2,250,000 of United Jewish Appeal funds are allocated annually to Zionist parties.

This may seem like a shocking disclosure, but the publication fails to mention that these sums are spent on the constructive work of the parties in Israel, to support their Israel projects and colonies, etc.

Had the publication in question had any integrity it might have raised the point that the time will come when the political development of Israel is such that these subventions can be discontinued. That time may have already come, and if it has, then the publication might have argued that the matter should be studied seriously with a view to either paring down the subsidies or ending them altogether.

In the same article, the publication mentions that the Mapai receives no funds from the UJA, preferring to raise the monies it uses by a separate drive—the Histadrut campaign. The drive, which in some cases drains off funds which might otherwise be contributed to the UJA, has been a bone of contention for some time in fund-raising circles.

The General Zionists and the Mizrahi, for reasons of their own perhaps, do not conduct separate drives in the U. S., but in lieu of funds which most certainly they could raise, accept the subvention for their work in Israel from the UJA.

Explained in this manner the "expose" of the anti-Zionist publication is no expose at all. It is nothing more or less than a traditional arrangement made for the benefit of fund-raising in the U.S.

SOME PROBLEMS TO PONDER

The plea heard by the Reform Rabbis at their convention that the inculcation into the school system of joint celebrations of Jewish and non-Jewish religious holidays is harmful (JP, July 1, '55) points up a situation in the Jewish community which for not too long can be evaded.

The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith has proceeded with its program, called intercultural education, despite the opposition of the public relations arms of the organized U. S. Jewish community, joined together in the National Community Relations Advisory Council (NCRAC).

Of course, the minority can be right, and often is. The ADL has been allowed to proceed with its program of promoting joint Hanukkah-Christmas celebrations without open opposition from other Jewish agencies.

The two positions can be outlined briefly:

The agencies affiliated with the National Community Relations Advisory Council (NCRAC) hold that the ADL project provides an opening wedge to break down the strict separation of church and state.

The ADL's approach is more pragmatic. It is based on the facts as they are. Christmas celebrations cannot be eliminated. Therefore, any Jewish observance that is introduced is in a manner a protection for the Jewish children, while at the same time breaking down some of the prejudice born of plain ignorance about Jews.

But the burden of the proof must be on the ADL.

Can the ADL claim the right to proceed with its program unless the program is continuously reviewed either by that agency itself or by some outside authority in the field who will seek the answer to the question whether the calculated risk is actually improving group relations or only seeming to do so. Then, even if the answer were in the affirmative, the question remains whether the principle of the separation of church and state is not too important to be jeopardized even if some very important gains for group relations are achieved.

QUAINT BUT DATED

The NEW YORK TIMES, on its society pages, continues to use the terminology "Rev. Dr." to denote a rabbi.

The wedding ceremony, that newspaper will report, was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Israel Judah.

We don't know the origin of this quaint terminology, but regardless of its origin or the validity it may once have had, today a rabbi likes to be called a rabbi.

The New York Board of Rabbis might very properly approach the management of the NEW YORK TIMES with the suggestion that the use of rabbi in its society pages is more seemly than Rev. Dr.

large Jewish center: We are not able to give our children the Jewish training we would like for them to have.

Critic Hits at Columnist

● Editor, JEWISH POST:

Replying to the many criticisms of her remarks, Helen Cohen asks that the charges of ignorance leveled against her be documented. (JP, June 3, '55). I am happy to do so.

She states that she inquired of an Orthodox rabbi about the important change that was made in the original separation period of seven days and that she came to the conclusion that the change must have evolved after Maimonides.

I wish to point out that the change was made by Rabbi Judah Hanassi who lived in the second century BCE. The change was based on Biblical law and the reasons for it may be found in the Talmud tractate Niddah 66a. Furthermore, the change was accepted as law and codified as such by Maimonides himself in his Yad Hachazaka Hilchot Isure Biah 11 para. 3 and 4.

I do not know who the Orthodox rabbi is whom Helen Cohen consulted, but she obviously mis-soon will receive. We have here a home for weak children, some after polio, and are pleased to be able to give them anything extra.

KELA STERNBERG
Kfar haRoe, Israel.

understood his explanation, since no Orthodox rabbi would be ignorant of so basic a fact.

However, if the information was actually given to her in the manner in which she writes, then the charge of ignorance ought not honestly to be leveled quite as vehemently as others and I have done.

May I suggest to her that before she rushes in where others fear to tread, she consult proper rabbinic authorities in the Orthodox camp.

Thank You, Dena; We Appreciate It

● Editor, JEWISH POST:

When your editorial "What's It Mean?" appeared it started an argument in our family. Three of us were almost positive that the editor had forgotten that the Rambam was not a variation of the rhumba or the mamba (or is it mumbo?). Our 14-year-old daughter, Dena, insisted that the editor was only trying to be facetious. Nothing we said could sway her. I was glad to learn, from the edition of June 17, that Dena is smarter than her parents and many a rabbi.

THANK POST READERS FOR AID

● Editor, JEWISH POST:

On behalf of the Ben Shemen children's village in Israel, we wish to thank you for your share in having a magnificent allocation of butter and cheese, part of the United States Department of Agriculture surplus stocks donated by the people of the United States to others, sent to us. We have been informed that your contributions made it possible for CARE to deliver this wonderful gift to us, as your donations covered the handling costs.

Our institution came into existence in 1926, when Dr. Siegfried Lehmann founded the village as both a haven of rescue and a center of rehabilitation for pogrom orphans from Eastern Europe. In almost 30 years, many thousands of children from all corners of the earth have made their home with us and have been trained in agriculture and related trades and vocations. We were the first to receive Hitler's child victims in 1933 and the starting point for the widely spread network of Youth Aliyah institutions which were developed from that year on.

It would make us very happy if any of your readers who find their way here would visit us and see for themselves how our children grow into happy human beings determined to take their places among the settlers of Israel.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS

AFRICAN JEWS ILL-TREATED IN ISRAEL, CHARGES READER

● Editor, JEWISH POST:

I have just returned from the Holy Land, to which country I travelled with my colleague, Mr. Jacob Elkrief, after receiving many letters from the recent emigrants to Israel, from Morocco.

These letters seriously complained at attempts which are being made to influence these religious people to give up their beliefs and practices. As we were personally responsible for their emigration in the first place, we feel it our duty to describe the development of this affair.

About a year ago when representatives of the Jewish Agency came to Morocco to obtain registrations for migration, a meeting took place between them and the representatives of the Jewish communities in Morocco. It was agreed that since almost all of these emigrants were religious, it was essential that they should be settled in the kibbutzim of Hapoel Hamizrachi. Crinker, the organizer on behalf of the Jewish Agency, then proceeded to register the people in the villages. They refused, however, to be registered, unless he furnished them with a communication from myself, guaranteeing that they would safely be settled in religious kibbutzim. The representatives of the Agency made us this definite promise, and we furnished them with our permission, as a result of which some 30,000 people registered, of whom in the last four months about 5,000 have emigrated to Israel.

After their arrival there, however, we received a stream of letters of complaint stating that they and their children are being taken away from religious surroundings.

We, therefore, decided immediately to travel to Israel and found these complaints to be absolutely justified. We give here three of the many examples:

They were given trefeh meat, including pork, and were told that "here in Israel everything is allowed."

On one occasion in a Mapai Kibbutz a large bonfire was lighted at night, and the children were told "look up to the sky, you can see nobody there."

No attempts are being made to give the children a religious education.

Mizrachi people who came to Morocco and who had assured us that all our people would go to religious settlements, told us that they had been deceived by Mapai. They told us they have no power against the non-religious parties. They told us that the Jewish world should be informed what was happening. But we blame them, particularly because they have made an agreement with the Jewish Agency so that 20 per cent of our people go to religious settlements and the other 80 per cent to Mapai and Mapam.

Moshe Kol, head of the Youth Aliyah, entered into a written agreement with Chief Rabbi Tolledano of Meknes, that all our children would go to religious settlements. The rabbi of Meknes had collected 400 children and sent them to Israel when it was found that in fact only 64 were sent to religious places, the remainder to Mapai.

We publish this information, based on our own personal knowledge, to the Jewish world. We cannot allow the souls of our brethren to be an object of trade and traffic. We appeal to world Jewry to come to our assistance. We shall not allow any of our people to leave the homes in which they and their families have lived for centuries, and where they have maintained religious practices, and then be sent to Mapai and Mapam and eventually, as we find to our bitter experience, even to the missionaries.

ISAAC ELMALEH,
Member of the Executive of the Casablanca Jewish Community.

Crime Story
Lacks Balance,
Says Reader

● Editor, JEWISH POST:

I wish to protest the manner in which your editor allowed the article "Crime, Prostitution Find Room In Growing Israel" to be headlined in The POST without a proper intelligent explanation of the facts.

I have just returned from my second visit to Israel, where I stayed this time for a period of two months.

While it is true that various types of illegal happenings are growing in the land, it is also true that the offenders are almost without exception the new immigrants from backward parts of the world, such as Morocco, where Western standards of morals and ethics are not known. I was told of the problem which Israel faces by a very good friend of mine with whom I spent some time, and who is one of the top officials of the country. The people of Israel have not become lawless, as your article implies; and, as far as prostitution goes, Israeli police have absolutely no problem with citizens who have lived in Israel for a period of time.

Problems do exist, however, among the newcomers from backward countries, and the situation is one of pity by those who understand, and measures are being taken to help those who fall by the wayside.

Israel hotels are absolutely clean and have no problem with unattached women. Israel streets are also free of this problem, as any tourist can attest to proudly. Tourists are besieged by strange women throughout Europe, while this is absolutely not true of Israel. I would appreciate your editors thinking twice before giving publicity to such unsigned and sensationally irresponsible articles.

Discloses Error
In 'It's The Truth'

● Editor, JEWISH POST:

I was greatly surprised to read in your May 27 edition under the heading "It's the Truth" the completely erroneous statement that "for a period of 460 years no rabbi ever officiated at religious services in Madrid, Spain" and that "the chain was broken by a New York rabbi in 1953. . . ."

In July, 1950, I visited the only existing synagogue in Madrid at the invitation of Dr. Samuel Sequerra, and at the invitation and urging of everyone present conducted the Sabbath evening services. Dr. Sequerra, who was the American Joint Distribution Committee representative in Spain, was present at the service.

Dr. Sequerra is a brother of my friend Dr. Sem Tob Sequerra of Lisbon, Portugal, one of the distinguished leaders of Portuguese Jewry. I had been his guest in Lisbon before coming to Madrid and addressed the Jewish community at the Jewish center there.

I think it only fair to bring this fact to your attention. Rabbi EPHRAIM F. EINHORN, Temple Beth David of the San Gabriel Valley, Temple City, Cal.

Rabbi Prescribes
Re-Jew-venation

● Editor, JEWISH POST:

Your editorial of May 27 entitled, "THIS IS LIVING," raises a vital question. While I do not profess to have the answer, this is a partial attempt:

To Reform rabbis these institutes are not new. Temple Brotherhoods, with the aid of the Jewish Chatauqua society, have been conducting such retreats and institutes professionally for a number of years, without nationwide publicity, a "TEFILLOH B'LAHHASH" rather than "B'KOL ROM," and with limited funds. But to non-Reform leaders such innovations should evoke wide participation. Here a two-fold problem must be considered: (2) the cultural level, and (2) the application of social group work principles. Therefore, in planning such institutes, the process is more important than the project itself, to evoke popular enthusiasm.

Our community is undertaking an Adult Retreat, in spite of its limitations in material and cultural resources. Through this challenge we hope to provide our small community with a stimulating and enjoyable vacation, through our three R's: Relaxation, Recreation, and Re-Jew-venation.

Rabbi SAMUEL HOROWITZ, Billings, Mont.

ISRAEL'S PROSECUTOR CHIEF GETS MARRIED IN CYPRUS

TEL AVIV (JP)—Israel's prosecutor general and former minister of justice, who is responsible for implementing rabbinic decisions in regards to marriage and divorce, was himself compelled to fly to Cyprus recently, in order to get married in a civil ceremony.

Haim Cohen, who is considered Israel's highest administrative judiciary authority, was refused permission to marry a divorced woman, because according to Jewish religious principles, adopted over 2,000 years ago, a Jew belonging to the tribe of Kohan cannot marry a divorcee. Having no alternative then than to contract a civil marriage, or call off his wedding. Cohen went to Cyprus.

Several months ago, when hunger-striker Moshe Barak requested the establishment of civil marriage in Israel, Cohen answered that "unless the Knesset changes the existing laws, only the rabbinic decisions are legal and valid."

CORNERSTONE LAID

JERUSALEM — The cornerstone of a new Hebrew university dormitory was laid here last week.

IT'S THE TRUTH!

By SAMUEL DEUTSCH

(Copyright, 1955, by Samuel Deutsch)

ALTHOUGH Jewish history is pretty well recorded, there is no complete record for the history of the Jews between the time of Ezra and the Maccabees!

* * *

JEWES HAVE BEEN living in China for 2,000 years. The Chinese word for Jew is "Tiao Kin Kiaou." Some native Chinese Jews, although few in number, have taken on Chinese facial and physical characteristics during the many centuries of their existence there!

* * *

ALL EARLY JEWISH congregations established in America were Orthodox! Reform and Conservative congregations came later.

* * *

THE HEBREW language has for centuries been designated with the appellation "lashon ha-kodesh," meaning "holy tongue." For a long time the Hebrew language was considered so sacred that nothing but holy books were written in Hebrew and it was sacrilege to write other types of books using Hebrew as the language of communication!

Yemenite Jews Charge Bias

TEL AVIV (JP)—Inhabitants of Mishkanot, a suburb of Rehovot, who call themselves "white" Jews, are boycotting the government school of the locality, because they don't like the children whom they call "black" Jews, according to a recent letter from 250 families of Yemenite Jews to the minister of education.

The letter says that the "white" Jews have had their stubborn attitude for three years and that a special school was opened for their children only this year. It also accuses the municipality of Rehovot of supporting the "white" Jews because they are members of Hapoel Hamizrachi, the party in power in Rehovot.

RUSSIA CONSIDERS REQUEST BY RABBIS TO VISIT SOVIET

By CHARLES ROTH

New York Bureau Chief

FALLSBURG, N. Y. (JP)—The Soviet government is considering the formal application of the Rabbinical Council of America to send a delegation of three to five rabbis to tour Russia, visit Jewish communities there, and confer with Chief Rabbi Fleischer of Moscow, Rabbi David Hollander, RCA president, told the Council at its annual convention here.

In his presidential message, Rabbi Hollander told of discussions with the chief rabbinate of many European countries in regard to forming a world federation of Orthodox rabbis to serve as a spokesman for Orthodox world Jewry.

Enumerating a five-point program, the rabbi called on the convention to take steps to formulate an Orthodox kehila in the United States. He cited the newly established Beth Din of the RCA, kashrut supervision, and the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations as parts of a kehila that already exists. He asked for the establishment of a national millah (circumcision) board and uniform burial practices and a legal aid board to aid Orthodox congregations who are threatened by attempts to change their synagogues to anything but Orthodox practices.

Referring to the resolution of the Rabbinical Alliance (extreme Orthodox) against a merger with the RCA, Rabbi Hollander said that it is time to have a single Orthodox rabbinical body in the United States.

Dr. Henry Raphael Gold, New York psychiatrist and rabbi, lashed out against the Reform suggestion for women rabbis. He said that it was hardly dignified for an old classic faith like Judaism to play a "me-too" accompaniment to fragmentary movements in Christianity. Claiming that such thinking is a threat to the whole fabric of American society, he added: "To say that equality of value means identity of function amounts to an hysterical denial of reality."

YEP, IT'S ALMOST here but it's a secret so a better not tell. The Beth-El USY group is having a mystery trip. Shhh, now. Haven't been able to find out anything about it except this, summing it up very neatly — thanks to the help of Lee Weinstein. Don't you dare tell now. "It's a mystery trip, we're going to take, and July 24 at 2 p. m. is the date.

"So bring your swim suit and meet at Beth El, and that is all we'll ever tell."

SEE WHAT I MEAN, everything's closed up, but good. Oh, well, the less you know, the merrier. I know this is short, but no one will jump off a bridge so I can have some news to print. Bye now,
